What's Going on in The Barnet Group

“I work a full week and every week I have to go to a foodbank. The people we serve, mostly, don’t.” – an assistant support worker for Your Choice Barnet.

Unsurprisingly COVID heroes on the lowest pay (London Living Wage) and other care and support staff are becoming angrier that they are not making any progress in getting a more meaningful pay rise.

They are being told that there is no money to pay them higher wages. Their claim is about receiving shift enhancements, enhanced pay for working weekends and bank holidays and enhanced overtime rates of pay.

They are not asking for anything more than what Council staff already receive. In fact, TBGflex staff would still have no access to the Council’s pension, nor are colleagues in Your Choice Barnet paid according to a job evaluation scheme. If they were then it would not be possible for care and support staff to earn less than colleagues who sweep the streets of Barnet.

Barnet UNISON accepts that Councils and employers providing care and support to the most vulnerable in society are not receiving anything like the money they need to do this well. However, within all organisations there are priorities and choices to be made.

We do not think an organization splitting itself so there are 2 sets of Senior managers including 2 CEOs, 2 sets of HR with 2 sets of policies and procedures to produce and monitor, 2 sets of payrolls, 2 sets of IT, 2 sets of finance teams is a good idea.

Most importantly care workers have mostly stood by and seen their pay and terms and conditions completely smashed over the last 25 years. All this has achieved is that other concerns have been prioritized over theirs. Isn't it time to see if we can start a ball rolling which puts the voice of the care worker out and loud saying "Enough is Enough!"?

Care and Support workers experiencing the squeeze of the Cost-of-Living Crisis are starting to say and tell us very loudly that they just cannot take it anymore.

Barnet UNISON is organising a series of Pay meetings over the next three months to update members on the National Pay Negotiations.

UNISON proposal is as follows:

- £3,000 or 10%.
- Two-hour reduction of the working week without financial loss.
- One additional annual leave.

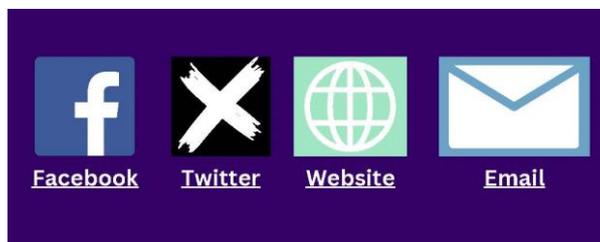

UNISON, Unite and GMB are in negotiations and will report back once they have had a formal response from the National Employers.

It is likely that UNISON will conduct a strike ballot of their members. It is important that all Barnet UNISON members are ready to VOTE. Last year Barnet UNISON was 6 votes short of a successful strike ballot.

This time we intend on delivering a massive VOTE on National Pay.
